Pioneer Was Noted For Aid To Careers Of Young

Joseph Bernstein, seventy-seven, a pioneer in the men's neckwear industry in New York, died in Doctors Hospital after a brief illness. A bachelor, he fostered the careers of many young men in his own business and in other fields. Mr. Bernstein got his first job as an office boy with the Altman Neckwear Corp. at $2 for a seven-day week. His chores included stoking and cleaning the office stove.

He rose rapidly during the next twenty-five years, becoming the firm's credit manager and then its president. He headed the company for the last forty years of his life. Mr. Bernstein was affectionately known as "Uncle Joe" by executives and minor employees in the men's clothing industry and by watchmen and elevator men. The name was first used when he began giving youngsters financial help to complete their education and get started in business.

Several men who served apprenticeship as office boys and shipping clerks under Mr. Bernstein later headed important clothing manufacturing and retailing concerns. A quiet, modest man, Mr. Bernstein shunned publicity in his many works of charity. This year he was named chairman of a neckwear industry drive for the Salvation Army, but his closest associates were not aware of his appointment until after his death. His friends learned indirectly of frequent instances in which he had helped organizations and needy individuals.

Ort To Continue Help To Jews In Iran

Mrs. Ludwig Kaphan, president of Women's American Ort (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training), said that despite political tensions in Iran Ort will continue to expand the vocational training programs there for the Jewish people. The organization, with Government approval had instituted five new training centers in Iran with a combined enrollment of 1,000. Mrs. Kaphan, who returned from a tour of 350 Ort installations in Europe and North Africa, reported to the board of directors, in New York.

The principal objective of the training centers in Iran is twofold: to provide the Jews with a basis for economic security by teaching them a trade and to train prospective immigrants to Israel for immediate participation in production upon their arrival. Mrs. Kaphan said that 800,000 European Jews were greatly in need of vocational training to achieve self-sufficiency as well as to facilitate their immigration to new lands.

She said that the need for vocational training among Jews in Europe had become acute because of the suspension of aid by the International Refugee Organization "and the general reduction of relief assistance by private agencies." One of three American delegates to the recent executive committee meeting of the World Ort Union in Paris, Mrs. Kaphan said it was making plans to ex-

Want Israel To Grant W.Z.O. Legal Status

Unless the leaders of Israel go beyond "a willingness to admit" that the Zionist movement is necessary to the point where they "believe enthusiastically" that it is "indispensable to the future of Israel as well as the Jewish people," world Zionist leader Dr. Israel Goldstein warned that any program evolved by the World Zionist Organization at its forthcoming Congress is "doomed to frustration and failure". In a statement issued before he left New York for Lydda, to attend the twenty-third World Zionist Congress beginning in Jerusalem on August 14, Dr. Goldstein, who is chairman of the World Confederation of General Zionists and a member of the Executive of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, asserted that delegates are going to the sessions of the top world Zionist policy-making body with mixed feelings, uneasy over the current crisis which endangers the future of the Zionist movement.

There is much talk, he pointed out, of the danger of a cleavage developing between Israel and Jews elsewhere, and in this connection the Zionist movement "is the only reliable bridge between Israel and the Jewish people . . . a bridge which cannot be built by paper resolutions behind which there is no resolution, no dynamic conviction, no fervent plan of operation." He saw a good chance that out of this Congress, the first ever to be held in Israel, the Zionist Organization can emerge strengthened and inspired, especially if the General Zionists, the largest body of organized Zionists outside of Israel, are able to achieve harmony and a consensus at their own meeting on August 6-11 in Jerusalem.

He held out hope for the unification of the two General Zionists wings in Israel, the [illegible] Party and the Progressive Party, whose differences have had repercussions among General Zionists in other parts of the world, because the chief obstacle which has stood in the way of unification may be removed after the forthcoming parliamentary elections in Israel. That obstacle, he explained, was

Israel Saw Abdullah As Force For Peace

During the Arab-Israeli truce negotiations under Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, United Nations Mediator, at Rhodes, delegates from Tel Aviv conferred secretly with King Abdullah of Jordan, who was slain last week, and his aides at the King's summer palace of El-Shuni. The Jordanian ruler sought a permanent settlement with Israel that would grant him an outlet to the Mediterranean at Gaza, with a strip of territory linking that port to Jordan. However, since Gaza was and is in Egyptian hands, the project failed.

Then Abdullah tried to persuade Tel Aviv to cede a strip of Israel territory north of Gaza. Israel objected to this because Jordan demanded too wide a corridor, which would be settled by Arabs and would cut Israel off from the Negeb.

Various formulas were examined, including one project to create a strip similar to United States Canal Zone in Panama. These talks broke off, but contact remained, says the New York Times. Later on, a second set of negotiations started but bogged down on trade relationships. Israel offered Abdullah free port rights at Haifa but the Jordanian ruler feared his country would be boycotted by the other Arab states.

He then proposed a five-year nonaggression pact between Amman and Tel Aviv, including freezing of the de facto frontiers (Jordan obtained a large piece of Arab Palestine as a result of the war and added this to her realm). It was suggested that joint guarantees would be given for the Holy Places and free access by citizens of both lands to Mount Scopus and Bethlehem.

Abdullah's political leaders objected to this formula. Conversations always held in Arabic continued, but nothing concrete emerged. Politically the project was too explosive.

Together with a part of Palestine, Abdullah had absorbed a large packet of angry and dispossessed Palestinian Arabs, many of whom were followers of the fanatical and jingo-minded Haj Amin el-Husseini, the Mufti of Jerusalem. From them the King could never obtain consent to an accord with Tel Aviv. It was their program to prepare for the day when the Israelis would be driven into the sea.

Now that Abdullah, the shrewd quiet diplomat of the Arab rulers, is dead, it may become considerably more difficult to keep the de facto peace, which has prevailed uneasily on Israel's frontiers for three years. His successor has neither the experience nor the position of the esteemed elder son of the great Sherif.

And in terms of long-range planning for the political consolidation of western Asia, his loss is bound to be felt. Certain British quarters have been thinking increasingly that such must be founded upon four main pillars—Turkey, Pakistan, Israel and Jordan, according to the Times.

Abdullah and his legion played a leading part in the Palestine war of 1948. Having gained an important part of his objectives—control of much of Arab Palestine and of the Moslem shrines of Old Jerusalem—he became, after the truce of 1949, one of the most moderate of Arab leaders in matters regarding the unsettled Palestine dispute.

Abdullah adhered strictly to the Moslem moral code, eschewing tobacco and alcohol but marrying three wives and fathering many children. He was noted for bravery and daring, personally led his legion before Jerusalem, and twice escaped assassination before the third attempt succeeded.

His knowledge of Arabic poetry was unsurpassed and his memoirs, published last year in English, were rich in literary and historic appeal. He was expert at camel racing and chess.

He declared himself King and changed the name of his kingdom in 1948, when full independence was achieved at the expiration of the mandate. The Arab League objected, but Abdullah, who had resisted the League's policies on previous occasions, did so again. His unpopularity among the states of the League as well as much of his strength arose from his preference for Britain's support, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Dr. Bunche termed King Abdullah "a unique personality in the modern world." He was "a philo-

TO BUILD HUGE BLACK GRANITE MEMORIAL TO JEWS SLAIN BY NAZIS

The model for a $500,000 memorial to 6,000,000 European Jews slain by the Nazis, to be built between 83d and 84th Sts. on Riverside Drive, New York, was given preliminary approval by the City Art Commission, it was announced by the American Memorial to Six Million Jews of Europe, Inc. The memorial will comprise an eighty-foot pylon of two tablets on which the Ten Commandments will be inscribed, and a 100-foot wall, depicting in bas-relief sculpture the struggle of mankind to fulfill the Commandments, urged on by a giant carving of Moses.

A. R. Lerner, chairman of the building organization, said that workmen began laying the foundation for the monument four weeks ago. A cornerstone-laying ceremony at the site of the monument, which was donated by the city, was held on October 19, 1947. At that time, a much smaller monument, fifty feet by fifty feet, was contemplated.

Representatives of the principal nations of the United Nations attended the 1947 ceremony, and ambassadors of three nations presented posthumous decorations in honor of the 40,000 heroes of the Battle of the Warsaw Ghetto, who rose up against the occupying Nazis and were nearly all killed. William O'Dwyer, then Mayor of New York, accepted the medals.

The monument, as now conceived, was designed by Ivan Mestrovic, Yugoslav sculptor, and Eric Mendelsohn, architect. It will be executed in black granite.

The City Art Commission, which must pass on public buildings, was divided on approval of plans for the monument at a July 9 meet-

He will enter the Hebrew University this fall. The contest was judged by: Professor Irwin Edman, of Columbia University, Oscar I. Janowsky, of The College of the City of New York; Horace M. Kallen, of The New School for Social Research; Drs. George Wise and I. S. Wechsler, of Columbia; and Maurice Samuel, author and lecturer.

O'Keefe's
CANADIAN SPORTS PARADE

FROM its advent about five years ago Canadian stock car racing has swept into a prominent position in the sport fans' affection. An outgrowth of the wheeled sports in the United States, stock car racing first appeared in Canada shortly after World War II. Graduating from the hazy one-a-week meet on rural pasture tracks, stock car racing has now moved (in many cases), into the cities and towns on a strictly scheduled, professional basis. The fans, guaranteed the battered carcasing chariots to their hearts and pocketbooks. Stock car racing is good, clean, dangerous fun.

Mobile-Ontario

Sanctioned by the Canadian Stock Car Racing Club, the rules and regulations of the new sport are strictly enforced. But before covering the "Do's and Dont's" let's take a look at the expansion of the stock car game in Ontario.

It's estimated that nearly 600 drivers compete in races every week in and around such towns and cities as Belleville, Hamilton, Brantford, London, Windsor, Guelph, Chatham, Oshawa, Fort Erie and Toronto. According to the capacity of the available parks as many as 6,000 spectators crowd in to watch their favourite drivers perform and an over-all weekly attendance figure for stock car racing in the Province should hover around 60 to 70 thousand fans.

For some unknown reason at least 60 per cent of the fans are women which should prove something or other about the gentler sex, for, as far as we know, women racing drivers are almost unknown in the sport except possibly around Brantford, Ontario.

Stock-Rules

Contrary to a general belief, strict rules govern the racing cars you see roaring around the tracks. The Canadian Stock Car Racing Club has issued a complete brochure governing safety with respect to the vehicles themselves. For instance, "all cars must be an original hard top with no roadsters or convertibles allowed. All cars must have fenders but no sharp edges allowed. Headlights must be removed and bumpers must not be interlocking. Mufflers must be left on or cars sufficiently quiet to meet track approval. Windshields must be left in and be of safety glass type. All other windows must be rolled down or removed.

"All car doors must be welded, bolted or strapped shut. Quick-release safety belt compulsory, bolted to frame at both ends. All drivers must wear approved racing helmets. Rearview mirrors recommended. Inside steel bracing compulsory. Hub caps must be removed. Racing numbers shall be one on each side and one on rear. The number, 13 shall not be used, this to include outside competitors."

For us, that last admonition would be quite unnecessary!

Most Dangerous Job

Although, in action, the stock cars average anywhere from 50 to 60 mph.; around the tracks the low score on serious accidents is a complimentary reflection on the governing body controlling the sport. And likely the most dangerous job is that of official starter.

We questioned Starter Ross Kennedy of the Oakwood Stock Car Racing Club (Toronto) and found that the closest Kennedy had come to disaster was losing the seat of his pants. But, nevertheless, the starter has to be a nimble operator handling his flags and controlling the actual race. Next time you attend the races check the masterful manipulation of flags: Green—for starts; Orange—caution, do not pass; Red—serious accident; Black—disqualifications; Crossed flags—half-way mark; White—one lap to go and, Chequered—winner.

To catch up on this stock car racing business you have your choice of the locations mentioned with, no doubt, many others on the way. At the moment, nearly half of the operating tracks are using arc-lights and specialising in night racing, so you have your choice of daytime or evening attendance.

We repeat, stock car racing is good, clean, dangerous fun. However, we'll still take that back seat high in the stands, please!

CLASS IN COOKERY

CAULIFLOWER OR CABBAGE PANCAKES

two eggs
four tablespoons matzoh meal salt and pepper to taste head of cauliflower or cabbage

Boil cauliflower or cabbage from twenty to twenty-five minutes, or until soft. Drain, and mash finely while warm, then allow to cool slightly. Add matzoh meal, salt and pepper, and eggs, combining well. Form into small pancakes, and fry in either butter or chicken fat, until well browned on both sides. When used with dairy dishes, serve with sour cream. Serving for six.

Mrs. I. Libman,
273 Montrose Avenue, Toronto.

PEACH CONSERVE

twelve cups peaches
nine cups sugar
two teaspoons cherry juice two whole oranges, grated fine sixteen maraschino cherries four tablespoons lemon juice

Peel and dice peaches. Add lemon juice, oranges, and sugar. Sliver cherries, and add with the juice. Let the mixture stand, covered, overnight. Cook until mixture is firm, testing it by putting a teaspoonful into a saucer, and placing it in refrigerator. When conserve is cooked sufficiently, it should wrinkle when touched. Pour into sterilized jars, right to the top. Seal tightly. This yields about seventy-two ounces.

Mrs. B. Dallen,
5882 Fulton Avenue, Montreal.

This recipe won first prize in its class in the contest sponsored by Montreal Laurentian Chapter Number 520, Bnai Brith Women.

SICK YOUNSTERS GO TO JDC SCHOOL IN TRIPOLI

Blind Jewish youngsters from the ghetto of Tripoli received new hope for decent lives when a special class was established for blind children at the Joint Distribution Committee-supported Pietro Verri School in that city. The blind students bring to more than 1,000 the total of ill and handicapped Jewish youngsters now being taught and cared for at the combined hospital-school and feeding-center. Classes are provided for children suffering from tuberculosis, trachoma (an eye disease which may result in blindness) and tinea (a highly-infectious scalp ringworm).

The youngsters, who spend ten or more hours daily at the school, receive food and medical care and treatment. Most of the blind youngsters lost their sight as a result of neglected trachoma, while others are blind as a result of wounds inflicted in the anti-Jewish riots which swept Tripolitania in 1946 and again in 1948. The establishment two years ago of the Pietro Verri School, and its continued expansion since then, are the result of efforts on behalf of hundreds of thousands of Jews in Tripolitania, Morocco, Algeria, Iran and other Moslem areas. During 1951, JDC allocated nearly $2,000,000 for its welfare, medical and other activities in the Moslem world, with funds provided by the United Jewish Appeal.

More than 125 children, the youngest only three years old, are now attending special segregated classes for TB sufferers. Constant care, modern medical techniques and regular supervised rest periods are helping to set the tuberculous youngsters on the road toward normal lives. Since nearly all of the tuberculous children are also suffering from malnutrition, they are also given four meals each day. JDC supports more than 370 institutions for children in twenty countries overseas. These include schools, both secular and religious, orphanages and children's homes, vocational training centers, hospitals, child-care centers, nurseries, dispensaries, milk-stations, well-baby clinics, kindergartens, sanitaria and feeding centers.

RABBI DIES ON 50TH WEDDING DAY

Rabbi Isaac Holzer, who with Mrs. Holzer had planned to observe their golden-wedding anniversary, died in his sleep at his home in New York that morning. His age was 78.

Married in Mosbach, Germany, on July 2, 1901, Dr. and Mrs. Holzer came to the U.S. in 1940. They were honored at a special anniversary service of Temple Beth-El, and had expected to be guests at an informal reception at the home of their son, Dr. Kurt Holzer.

Dr. Holzer, who was rabbi of Temple Beth-El there from 1942 to 1946, attended the University of Berlin, where he received a Ph. D. degree in 1897. He studied also at the Rabbinical Seminary of Berlin and was ordained in 1900.

After retiring, because of failing health, Dr. Holzer devoted himself to scientific work, the philosophy of religion and Jewish history. He wrote "The Doctrine of Divine Attributes in the Medieval Jewish Philosophy of Religion," published in Berlin. Surviving besides his widow and son, Kurt, is another son, Ernest Holzer of Mamaroneck.

To meet the growing need for specialists in various fields, the Government of Israel recently established a Department of Professional and Technical Personnel attached to the Office of the Prime Minister. The function of this department will be to locate those skilled people interested in the future development of the country and to invite them to fill specific positions in Israel.

BORN IN RUSSIA, WAS MOTHER OF ZIMBALIST

Mrs. Maria Zimbalist, eighty-three, mother of Efrem Zimbalist, distinguished American violinist and composer, died at her home, 30-58 36th Street, Astoria, Queens, New York.

Mrs. Zimbalist was born in Rostov-on-the-Don in Russia, and was married there to Aaron Zimbalist, conductor of the town opera house orchestra, who died twenty years ago.

When her talented musician son was in his ninth year, he ran away from home with some musicians and his mother found him three days later playing first violin in an orchestra at Ekaterinodar in the Caucasus. She allowed him to remain a month, then took him home to continue his schooling. When he was twelve, Mrs. Zimbalist took him to Petrograd to study with the late Leopold Auer.

The family came to the United States in 1923. Also surviving are two other sons, Solomon and Sam Zimbalist, and four daughters, Mrs. Flora Massell, Mrs. Lubs Silver, Mrs. Bertha Katton and Mrs. Eda Goldberg.

Raw furs produced in Canada in the season 1949-50 (excluding Newfoundland), were valued at $23,184,000, slightly above the figure of $22,899,900 in 1948-49. The number of pelts taken during the year was 7,377,500, wild life accounting for 6,762,900 and ranch-raised animals for the remaining 614,600.

Israel's output of vegetables has risen by 220% since the establishment of the State, and all but 2% of the population's vegetable needs are now supplied locally, according to a report given at the recent exhibition in Tel Aviv under the auspices of the Ministry of Agriculture to illustrate the extent of Israel's agricultural development during the past three years. The production of special types of vegetables for export was also illustrated. To date, potatoes, tomatoes, eggplants, onions, mulberries, watermelons and cauliflower have all been exported to Great Britain. Among the new crops which Israel is cultivating in order to save foreign currency by reducing imports are sugar beets, ground nuts and tobacco.

DROOPING GERANIUM

BY MOLLY STEIN

We sit in the sun on bales of new mown hay. Over the bare, improvised stage the Hebrew characters flutter and spell out "If you wish it, then it is no myth." If you wish it—is this, then, the "source" of Kfar Lam, the Village of the Dragon? Is this, then, the vision, the mystical concept? Here on the hill by the sea, bleak, beautiful, desolate, alone below the shadow of the Carmel, young men dig and till. They toil, and their women scour away the Arab accumulation and bring to the surface as their reward, not alone their western hygiene, but a Crusader castle built perhaps on the foundations of a Byzantine fortress. They speak of harvests and tractors where once they spoke of cinemas. These beautiful chiselled visages with their heritage of luxury from South Africa, they hew and they harvest. The new in this historically ancient land. The young attempting to bridge again their "lost liaison" with the earth.

So they build. Virile, alien to the Orient, with the strong impress of their origins—South Africa, America, an Irishman with his soothing brogue, a meed of Sabras to lend their steel-like tenacity, their peasant singleness of mind. Perhaps the Sabra is the reality of the myth. "If you wish it, then it is no myth." And the two Johnnys, Englishmen, non-Jews, are they too the "myth" becoming? Johnny I, with his family killed by Nazi bombs — is this his sense of affinity with this alien land? And Johnny II, the professional soldier, who indignantly asserts "all my life I've been in arms. All I can do is kill. I have never done anything worth while." Is this his point of contact with the men and women from the southernmost corner of Africa? They till the lands from whence the Arabs have fled.

We sit and sit in the sun. Speeches are made. Rifka, proud and lovely, directs the ceremony. This is the "official" opening of their "moshav" (settlement). For six months the "members" have cleared and cleaned and organized. Today they are. Today is their point of departure from theory into fact. For this they have all bent their skill to making this simple feast. Everywhere are traces of its origin — South African factory-made biscuits, American candy, the d'oyleys and cloths from finer times. Traces of a finer leisure. There are the flies from the Orient.

As we sit on our straw we hear gusts of song blown from the choir on the rooftop, alien song, so consciously learnt, so emotionally acquired. Over all shrouds this veil of emotion, emotion a little stronger, a little larger than reason. And I think why, why should these beautiful bearded youths with their fine maidens voluntarily, willingly, hoe the earth, why should they till and toil? For them there has been no personal Hitler, no individual persecutions. They have not been hemmed in by ghettoes or threats of ghettoes.

As we talk Israel's newly acquired train puffs and whistles its way below the hillside by the sea. Ruben laughs and tells of their daily local joke — "That's to warn the girls down at the shower on the seashore. The first day that the trains started running, two of the girls were having their shower right alongside the railway line, when they suddenly found themselves looking at the engine driver and his passengers! Now by a gentleman's agreement, the engine driver sounds his whistle before the bend. We set our watches by the train—wonderful our trains!" He chortles with the inordinate pride and wonder of the neophyte. This blonde Semite. How eager the "our."

On the horizon of the stage eight figures in improvised costume begin to dance — uncertainly, self-consciously, eager, confused, groping for contact. We sit on our straw grown hotter. The word goes round "Khamseen" — the experience of the Sabras labels our discomfort. We instantly feel better. "Khamseen, Khamseen" — that dread desert wind. The eight figures dance and finish indecisively. We wander about. There isn't much to see: a few scrubby chickens that a jovial Falstaffian farmer from South Africa announces he would scorn to keep on his farm. "But I think they're wonderful. Gosh I feel I'd like to get down to work here with these youngsters." He puffs enthusiasm through his cigar, inadequate of speech to formulate his emotion, all felt and unreasoned.

On the hillside the "elders", the foster fathers of the pioneers, plant their commemorative olive saplings, those sad, mournful trees, indestructable as time. Under the amused, watchful eye of their assigned instructor, the novitiates help to set their first permanent roots in the earth. Hands are clasped, benedictions and blessings are showered. Why? No one knows, everyone feels.

Katie, new come to the land of Israel, is unhappy — unhappy, displaced from her former bright orbit — her comforts, the fleshpots of well-being, the recognition in the streets. Tears brim her lids and her western hat sits ill in the landscape. She swears this is her land. She swears she will not leave this land, whose alien tongue she cannot speak. All is emotion that wells up so oddly. Only the Sabras are unemotional, arrogant, watchful as the tiger, sensitive as a new bride, tough as the children of the Bible, who wandered the wilderness of Sinai. They are the peasants, sunworn, unoriental, heavy of tread.

We wander in the courtyard, round which stand the once-Arab frame, a daub of blue on the wall houses. A blue door, a blue window tell the tale of Oriental superstition, the primitive dread of the evil eye. Against the grey stone it adds an unexpected and welcome coolness in the glare of the light and the heat. The courtyard is bleak, soil without foliage, colourless, torrid, lacking the caress of grass. But the first cool, green shadow has begun to stretch its finger, minute and tenuous in the heat. Rifka has set the first fragile root hairs in the dry hot sand. A frail geranium, the offering of the instructor for his pupils, gasps and transpires as the Khamseen blows.

In Rifka's thick-walled room are chairs, fireside chairs, brought in a great "lift" from the South, the couch, a picture, a vase empty and alone; books, a deep trunk heavy with the beauty of dresses stacked in a nostalgia of bodies and perfume. "Tell me, tell me," she urges, "how is everyone, what are they doing? It's strange how quickly everyone seems a thousand years away. We wait for the mail . . ." we flesh her longing . . "a thousand years away, how are they all?" The memory crouches ready to spring. "Did you see my geranium" she asks irrelevantly. "Of course it's very hot for the poor thing right now." Outside it is hot, very hot.

How many summers will burn their course before these novitiates see the profusion of geraniums, will hear an apple plump in the orchard in the stillness of the night? When for them the treading of the grape, the tang of new wine on the tongue after the vintage is come?

Husks of oranges, flies, excitement . . . The air of a school concert successfully achieved. The buses whir their starters. Shalom fills the air. Shalom, shouts Ruben and beckons his dog "Zulu."

Tasty sandwiches with rich cheese sauce

... made the easy way with smooth-melting VELVEETA

• For the whole family—for company, too—you can make all kinds of nutritious treats with Velveeta. For instance, this Luncheon Sandwich. Make three-deck sandwiches of toast spread with Kraft Mayonnaise. Use peeled sliced tomatoes for one filling, crisp lettuce for the other. For cheese sauce: Melt ½ lb. Velveeta in the top of a double boiler. Stir in ¼ cup milk, ½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce, ⅛ tsp. dry mustard. Season. Garnish with pickle fans.

Everyone loves Velveeta's rich yet mild cheddar cheese flavor, and it's digestible as milk. Slice it, spread it, melt it—it's always delicious! Ask your grocer for Velveeta in the ½ lb. package, the 1-lb. loaf or the 2-lb. loaf.

Israel Minister Goes To Prague

The Israel Executive of the World Jewish Congress gave a farewell party in honour of Dr. Arieh Leon Kubowi (Kubowitzki), newly appointed Minister of Israel to Czechoslovakia. Dr. A. Tartakower, chairman of the Congress Executive in Israel recalled impressions of the work in the field of Jewish rescue and defence, in which they had been engaged together during World War II. Joseph Sprinzak, speaker of the Knesseth, stressed the symbolic importance of the fact that this meeting was taking place in free Jerusalem, the capitol of Israel. The Consul-General of Czechoslovakia in Israel expressed the hope that Dr. Kubowi's mission would contribute to strengthen the friendship between the two nations.

Other speakers included Dr. M. Nurock and M. Agrov, chairman of the Political Committee of the Knesseth. In his reply, Dr. Kubowi stressed the fact that his new mission represented a continuation of his present work and emphasized the importance of the World Jewish Congress for the maintenance of strong Jewish communities all over the world.

A complaint that summer resorts in New York, New Jersey and New England are violating the civil rights law of New York State was lodged by the American Jewish Congress with the New York State Commission Against Discrimination. In this complaint it is alleged that these resorts are circumventing the advertising policies of New York City newspapers by substituting phrases such as "near churches", "near Christian churches", and "Protestant and Catholic churches nearby" for the terms "selected clientele", "restricted clientele", and others, declared unlawful by the District Attorney of New York County.

The awards are sponsored annually by the Canadian Association for Adult Education, on behalf of more than fifty national organizations. Mr. Mills has appeared at the Y.M.-Y.W.H.A. here; has worked with the Brai Brith Women's Laurentian Choral Group, of which Mrs. Abe Stotland is chairman; and sang with the Group at a Festival of International Songs and Dances at the Cesu Hall here, this spring. He has made recordings of three songs, with the Group.

● BOY SCOUTS: King Scout Gerald Shalinsky, Troop leader of the Shaar Hashomayim Scout Troop, was selected as one of the thirty-two King Scouts who will represent Canada at the Seventh International World Jamboree, in Austria, in August. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shalinsky, Circle Road. Mr. Shalinsky was a King Scout in the 11th McGill Troop about twenty-five years ago, under Scoutmaster P. R. Lyman. Gerald has more than forty merit badges, including the Bushman's Thong, Citizenship, World Friendship, St. John's Ambulance; and Royal Life Saving Society Bronze Medallion. He is a Knight of Tamara, the honor society of Scout Camp Tamarascouts. This will be Gerald's first ocean crossing, but the second time he has represented Canada at a Jamboree. Last year he was at the American Jamboree at Valley Forge, N.Y., where he met with 50,000 Scouts. Prior to his departure with the other Scouts on the Ascania, where they were piped aboard by Scouts from the Upper Lachine Troop, Gerald was at Camp Tamarascouts with the other Canadian Scouts. On their return to Montreal they were guests of honor at a civic reception in the office of Mayor Houde, where they signed the Golden Book; and had dinner at the Canadian Club, prior to a tour of the city. They are staying in Middlesex, near London, England, at the headquarters of the First Hounslow Scout Troop, which is comprised of the buildings and orchards of an old farm owned originally by a nephew of Charles Dickens, who visited it many times. On Saturday, July 28, the Scouts will be reviewed by Her Royal Highness, Princess Elizabeth, at Clarence House. When the Contingent leaves England, they will travel to Bad Ischl, via France and Switzerland, arriving in Austria on August 3. They will be present at the Festival of Music there; and after the Jamboree, will return to England, sailing from there on August 23. Gerald is the first Jewish boy who has qualified, and been accepted, to represent Scouts here. Prior to his departure, at a ceremony at Boy Scout Headquarters, Gerald was presented with a gold Magen David by District Scoutmaster Phil. Zukerman, on behalf of these Jewish Troops: Shaar Hashomayim, leader, Eugene Gordon; Y.M.-Y.W.H.A., at Mount Royal, Nat. Babbins, and at Snowdon, Herbert Lewis; Adath Israel, Leon Friedman; Shearith Israel, Harry Spsevak; Fairmount, Arnold Borts; Neighborhood House, Morton Hersh; and Lord Balfour Rover Crew, of which Alex Gelibter is leader.

● CANADIAN Jewish Congress: Samuel Harvey, who is chairman of the United Jewish Relief Agencies Committee, and a member of the national executive, has been appointed chairman of the campaign committee of the Jewish People's Schools annual drive for maintenance funds late in the summer. Mr. Harvey is honorary president of the Schools, and president of the United Jewish Teachers Seminary which has been training teachers for Jewish schools in Canada for the past five years with the assistance of the Congress.

The Basic Evil

BY DR. LOUIS FINKELSTEIN, OF NEW YORK, PRESIDENT OF THE JEWISH THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY OF AMERICA

There has yet emerged no adequate effort to deal with the long-range plans for the peaceful development and security of our country. In the final analysis, the frontiers of our country are not geographical at all, but spiritual; they are not oceans, mountains and rivers, but the hearts and souls of men. Granted the love, admiration and respect of the free world, we can march down the path of history, fulfilling the destiny to which we have been called, to translate the ancient theological doctrine of the one good into the practical politics of the one world, and the philosophical concept of the good man into the concrete policy of the good neighbor.

How can we expect to have this love, however, when in our hearts, we deny the equality of men? The vast populations of Asia and the Pacific Islands, and the emergent peoples of Africa, will accept our moral leadership, if we accept their biological, anthropological, and theological brotherhood. Do we deserve moral leadership of the world on any other terms? And yet, how can we survive, or the free world survive, without our moral leadership?

Yet, the love and respect which we must win, in order that the nations of the world, as well as we, may remain safe and secure, cannot be given us, so long as we reject the Prophetic principle of the brotherhood of man. How can the peoples of Asia, without whose following we cannot be secure, and who cannot escape bondage, without our leadership, feel affection and admiration for us, when each day we pronounce them as racially, biologically, and incurably inferior to ourselves? How can the men of the Pacific Islands and of Africa, and their kinsmen in our own midst, accept America as the moral and spiritual leader of the world, when America rejects them as the biological equals of its own people?

The fearful dilemma of mankind today is that it can neither accept American leadership nor reject it. The world cannot endure without the guidance that we alone can offer, and yet it dare not accept the price it must pay for such guidance, so long as we deny the majority of the human race the status of humanity. The Nordic theory, which is still a basic premise of many of our immigration and naturalization laws, was one of the causes of the second World War; it is the evil that is preparing the way for a possible Third World War.

As ministers, it is our bounden duty to call our fellow citizens to repentance with regard to this basic evil, which threatens the very existence and survival of our land, and with it, of free institutions everywhere.

ing, voting three for, three against. Members asked for a model and effected a change of design on the tower which reduced its height from ninety to eighty feet. The commission gave the project preliminary approval.

Israel Rogosin, president of Beaunit Mills, Inc., is chairman of the board of the building organization. The $500,000 will be raised by public subscription according to Mr. Lerner. The organization plans to unveil the monument in April, 1953, on the tenth anniversary of the uprising in the Warsaw Ghetto, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Among sponsors of the memorial are Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, Thomas J. Watson, Rabbi Israel Goldstein, the Right Rev. Charles K. Gilbert, the Right Rev. Henry K. Sherrill, Professor James H. Sheldon, Eddie Cantor, John Cashmore, Associate Justices Hugo L. Black and William O. Douglas, of the Supreme Court; James A. Farley, Rep. Jacob K. Javits, Henry Luce, Archibald MacLeish, Jacob S. Potofsky, Rabbi William F. Rosenblum, Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Herbert Bayard Swope, Harold E. Stassen, Channing H. Tobias, the Rev. Dr. David de Sola Pool, and Hugo E. Rogers.

Production of Canada's chemical and allied products industries in 1950 was the highest attained in any peace-time year, according to preliminary statistics compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The year's value amounted to $635,966,000 as compared with $587,382,000 in 1949, a gain of 8.3 per cent.

WANT ISRAEL

the fact that the Progressive Party is in the government coalition while the General Zionist Party has been in the opposition. With both in the coalition, he felt that an important contribution toward national unity and economic stability, which are the cardinal principles of both, could be made. Notwithstanding differences among General Zionists on a few issues such as the identification of Zionist groups outside of Israel with any group within the state, Dr. Goldstein pointed out that his organization is firmly united in its stand for a legal status granted by Israel to the World Zionist Organization, the abolition of double representation for Israelis at the Congress, and the establishment of overall Zionist bodies in each country in which the various Zionist parties would be represented according to their membership.

On these and other vital issues, he emphasised, General Zionists can take the lead in formulating a positive and effective program at the Congress, which will make it clear to those in Israel and elsewhere who would minimize the need for a strong Zionist movement that Zionists throughout the world are ready and able to provide the main reservoir of strength for the new state. The world Confederation of General Zionists, comprising General Zionist organizations in thirty-eight countries, including the Zionist Organization of America and Hadassah, has, since its establishment in 1946 at the last Zionist Congress in Basle, conducted an organizational, educational, and economic program to further General Zionist aims with regard to Israel and Jewish life elsewhere. Through its economic arm, the General Zionist Constructive Enterprises Fund, Ltd., it has spent over $3,000,000 in supplementary aid for its network of 19 settlements, six educational institutes for youth, aid to immigrants, housing and industrial construction, and for the General School System in Israel.

"He was one of the most charming men I have ever known," Dr. Bunche added, in New York. "In all of my dealings with him in connection with the Palestine dispute I found him always friendly, reasonable and one whose word could be fully trusted."

Israel's delegation at the U. N. had no comment on the assassination, but it was known that Tel Aviv looked on King Abdullah as a restraining influence on Israel's neighbors.

Several Arab delegates laid the blame for the shooting on unrest that, they said, had arisen in reaction to Zionism and great-power meddling. The solution, they said, was to grant the Arab nations their "legitimate aspirations."

pand schools and facilities to meet the rising need for vocational training in Europe.

Ort maintains 474 training centers throughout the world, including Israel, where students are trained in crafts and industry. Between 1945 and 1950, Ort centers provided training to more than 130,000 Jews, and 150,000 now are being instructed. The organization has been in existence for seventy years. In America it receives funds from the Joint Distribution Committee, a beneficiary of the United Jewish Appeal campaign.

Ort has training centers in Casablanca, Algiers, Constantine, Tunis, and other installations are being built in Iran and in southern Algeria. Thirty-seven vocational training installations in Israel are making a contribution to the economic development of that country.

"Finest Cup of Coffee You Ever Tasted!"

NO FUSS · NO MUSS · MADE "QUICK AS A WINK"

This summer, take along a jar of Nescafé, and avoid the old-fashioned drudgery of coffee-making.

You can have truly fine coffee in a matter of seconds, when you use Nescafé. At mealtimes, for lunches, anytime, it's so easy to make, so sure to satisfy. Nescafé eliminates the nuisance of coffee pots, the bother of messy grounds, and it requires much less space to pack than regular coffee.

Whether you use a cup or a coffee-server, just measure out one teaspoonful of Nescafé for each cup desired, and add boiling hot water. That's all there is to it. *Nescafé gives you delicious coffee every time, and you can serve it iced or hot.

The 4 oz. jar saves you up to 40¢ a pound, the 12 oz. jar saves even more.

Drink NESCAFÉ and enjoy the finest cup of coffee you ever tasted

*Nescafé (pronounced NES-CAFAY) is the exclusive registered Trade Mark of Nestlé's Milk Products (Canada) Limited to designate its Soluble Coffee Product. It is composed of equal parts of pure soluble coffee and added carbohydrates (dextrins, maltose and dextrose) added solely to protect the flavour.
